Ava and the Singing Shell

An under-the-sea story starring Ava

STARWREN

Ava loved the beach. Splash, splash, splash! One sunny morning she found a shiny shell.

The shell hummed a tiny song. Hum, hum, hum.
Ava put it to her ear and listened.

Whoosh! The shell began to glow. A big bubble hugged Ava, and down, down, down she floated.

A little orange fish swam up. “Hello! I’m Bubbles,” he said. “Can you help me?”

“I lost my mama’s pearl,” said Bubbles. “Oh no!” said Ava. “We will find it!”

They swam past a turtle. “Hello, Turtle!” Slow, slow, slow. The turtle pointed with a flipper.

They peeked into the coral garden. Pink, purple and yellow! Ava looked high and low.

A sleepy clam held the pearl like a blanket. Shh, shh, shh.

Ava sang the shell’s song. Hum, hum, hum. The clam yawned wide, and the pearl rolled out.

Bubbles's mama gave a big hug. All the sea friends cheered. "Hooray for Ava!"

“Thank you, Ava!” said Bubbles. Ava gave a little wave. “Bye-bye, sea friends!”

Up, up, up! Ava was back on the beach. Hum, hum, hum. “Goodnight, sea.”

Made just for Ava

Ava found a shell that hummed a tiny song, and a little fish who needed a friend. Hum, hum, hum.

For Ava. (Sample book: Ava is a fictional child.)
